Category:Diagnostic equipment Category:Fiat Group Category:Computer hardware tuningQ: Best way to store and update large data in database I have SQL Server database which is getting its data from SQLServer data source (parameterized query), it is available for development and usage. I have more than 20,000,000 records in it. So every time user inputs data from web form to database, it takes some time to load the values. I am thinking to cache these values in memory for few days. Means, in first day (say) first 50,000 records should be cached and it should be updated every day (say) next 50,000 records. Do you think this will be efficient or I should use database tables for this purpose? Any advice will help. A: Caching data is the main problem with every new application. You have to ask yourself, what is the goal of caching? What is the maximum amount of data that can be cached in this scenario? 1 day? Week? Month? In general the answer to f678ca9f9e
